THE SHORT CUT

For the Short Cut, clip on either the $\frac{3}{8}$ " or the $\frac{1}{2}$ " attachment depending on the length of hair desired and cut the hair against the direction in which it grows. Normally, from front to the crown of the head, up the sides to the crown and up the back to the crown. If necessary, repeat the movement to assure cutting the hair to a uniform length. For smooth, uniform cutting, especially with coarse, heavy hair, allow the clipper to cut its way through the hair—do not force it through at a rate faster than the blades can cut.

THE CREW CUT

Cut the hair up the back to a place just short of the crown of the head. Cut straight up the sides and from the back of the ears in a line parallel to the sides of the face, leaving the hair long on top from the front to the crown. Use the coarse-tooth end of the comb to hold the hair on top in a cutting position and trim the top off flat, generally parallel to the line of the eyes, starting at the front and working toward the crown. The hair must be longer at the front than at the crown.
